LEGION AUXILIARY HAD PROGRAM ON CIVIL DEFENSE

The American Legion Auxiliary met Monday night in the American Legion Home. Mrs. Shearer Robertson, Civil Defence Chairman, introduced Sheriff David T. Robertson, Civil Defense Director and Coordinator for the County of Appomattox, who spoke to the group. He stressed the importance of good organization in order that the community might be prepared to operate in an emergency, if the need arises. In the event of enemy attack, each area must be self sufficient for 72 hours and in the case of Appomattox, which has been designated as a support area, plans must be made to care for those from evacuation areas who will come into Central Virginia. Evacuees coming from target areas of Virginia (Northern Virginia, Hampton Roads, area, Richmond, and Roanoke) could number from 18 to 40 thousand. Each home also should provide a shelter area and be prepared for a two week's survival in the home without outside contact, except a battery radio. It is hoped that the need will never arise, but it is best to be prepared. Civil Defense is a best chance and "insurance for survival."

Mrs. Robertson then introduced Honorable Watkins M. Abbitt, the Fourth District Representative, who spoke on National Security. He stressed the fact that our fight for total Peace must continue, as the Communists continue to wage a cold war. He cited the recent incidents of the Far East situation, the shelling of off-shore islands of China by the Chinese Communists, and now the situation in Berlin as examples of the cold war, and one reason it is not a hot war is due to the fact that the Communists realize that we are well prepared, and we need to keep a step ahead of the Communists. We are compelled to keep a strong military force to protect us from attack, and also to be able to retaliate. At the same time we need to be economically strong.

Seasonal refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. David Robertson and Mrs. Shearer Robertson.

The Unit will remember less fortunate veterans' families as Christmastime as a project of the Child Welfare Department, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Emile Bruce. Announcement was also made that part of the funds received from the sale of Poppies last May, in which all citizens of the county had a part, was sent to the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Virginia, for giving a gift to each veteran in a veterans hospital in Virginia. Contributions were also made to the gift shops at the three hospitals, Roanoke, Kecoughtan, and McGuire. Each indigent patient in these hospitals may visit these gift shops and select a gift for each member of his or her family without cost. It is then gift wrapped and mailed by volunteer auxiliary members.

Thinking of buying some new pillows? You'll be faced with a wide choice, say Extension specialists.

They have some tips which may help you in making your choice. Pillows, say the specialists, should be light weight, but firm enough to give the head plenty of support. To test a pillow, press it down and see whether or not it springs back readily. Pillows that are filled with properly cleaned and cured materials should be free of odor. There are many types of pillows, with different kinds of filling, now on the market.

Goose or duck down makes a soft pillow. Down mixed with some feathers makes a firmer pillow. Good pillows filled with down range in price from $8 to $15. Down and feather pillows are somewhat cheaper. The least expensive pillows in this group are filled with chicken and turkey feathers, with a price range of about $2 to $6.

Foam rubber pillows are low in tensile strength and must be handled with care. Frequent washing is neither desirable nor necessary. When washing is needed the pillows in their protective coverings. The price of foam rubber pillows ranges from $5 to $10.

Pillows filled with batting made from dacron or acrilon fibers are moth-proof, resilient, odorless, washable, and non-allergic. Hand laundering is recommended. Pillows may be dried in the automatic dryer. Acrilon pillows cost more than dacron pillows. Prices in these two types range from $4 to $8.

About The Home

By Frances Dell

In most sections of the U. S. A. the gardens are in a very unattractive stage. However, in order to be happier over next spring and summer results, now is the time to put in some hard work and planning.

Make a compost pit, which is very easy and an important "must" for impoverished soils. Simply dig a pit one to three feet deep and five or six feet in diameter, depending on the amount of compost needed. Arrange alternating layers of leaves, weeds, stalks and manure. Add to this a quart or so of a good commercial fertilizer. Moisten and turn frequently. Allow thorough decomposition before using.

Start new beds at this time by incorporating manure and bone meal into the soil and allowing the soil to remain turned until spring. Also, put wood ashes on beds to be used under next year.

Perennial borders should be mulched after the ground is frozen or very, very cold. Some reliable mulches are buckwheat hulls, leafmold and peat moss.

In many parts of the country it is, or soon will be, rose - planting time. Good plants must be chosen in the first place to have rewarding blooms. Remember, not all varieties are equally hardy. Select the varieties which experts have found

BOND SALES LAG

Appomattox County is at the end of the quota year, far behind in its purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds. Figures released this week by the State Bond Headquartern show that sales for November of E & H bonds were only $1,106.25. This brought the year's total for the first eleven months to $56,906.20, or only 57% of the county's $100,000 quota.

For the state as a whole, sales stood at 90% of the $84,700,000 quota, with $75,997,308.48 having been sold.

Big Ewes Mean Big Lambs

Work conducted at the Southwestern Range and Sheep Breeding Laboratory demonstrates that heavier ewes, regardless of breed or wool type, produce heavier, faster growing lambs than lightweight ewes. Thus, early culling just prior to breeding brings quick profits.

Large ewes produce larger lambs because of greater milk production and the inherited factor of rapid growth.

Large ewes produce a heavier clip. More skin area for growing wool.

Good Cows Pay More

A summary of 27,110 DHIR herds points out that good cows yield more net profit. A 6100 pound cow nets $31.00 while a 1400 pound cow nets $158.00.

Testing is the only sure way of knowing which individuals are making money. During January, dairymen will be reading a great deal with reference to testing programs now available.

Coming: Sex Control of Calves

To separate the spermatozoa, semen is collected, diluted and placed in a tube with electrodes at either end. New Residents Aid To Economy

Richmond, Va.- The effect on the Virginia economy of the coming of new residents is comparable to that of a new industry, according to Raymond V. Long, Director, Virginia Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Long was referring to a report, just released, on the Department's program to attract new residents to the state.

He stated that a recent survey in one Virginia community revealed that its post World War II new residents had invested an average of $25,000 in property and an average of $5,000 annually in the community. At this rate of expenditures, which might be high in one community and low in another, the coming of 100 new residents would be the equivalent, Long pointed out, of a new industry with a capital outlay of 2½ million dollars and an annual payroll of one-half million dollars.

He said the new program will be of special benefit to rural areas which have lost population in recent years as a result of mechanized farming and industrial demands. "Reoccupation and rehabilitation of vacated farm-type homes by new residents can greatly improve this situation," Long continued. "The economic potential of such a development throughout Virginia is incalculable."

Long explained that the program is not geared solely to retired persons, many of whom, upon retirement, leave cold climes, industrial areas and big cities for warmer climes, open areas and hopefully pleasant and interesting community life. While a considerable portion of the people who come to Virginia to live are in retirement, Long said the program is also directed toward people of all ages who, as independent, competent individuals are establishing a new home. Such persons will make valuable, economic, cultural, civic and social contributions to their communities.
